Acknowledgments

This book originated as a conference at the William Andrews Clark Library in Los Angeles. It is a pleasure to be able to thank the director, Peter Reill, and the fine staff who made that event such a pleasant experience. That it does not remain only a pleasant memory is due to the University of Toronto Press, to its two anonymous readers, and to Ron Schoeffel, who shepherded the book from start to finish. Theresa Griffin offered careful copy-editing when it was most needed, and Anne Laughlin flawlessly supervised the end-game. I thank Professors Glenn Most, Michael P. Steinberg, Anthony Grafton, Riccardo Di Donato, Deborah L. Krohn, and Naomi C. Miller for their helpful comments at various points in the making of the book. I especially thank Di Donato in his capacity as executor of the Momigliano estate for his generosity in providing us with these great photographs of Momigliano. Most of all, I have to thank the contributors to this volume: for their freely given labour, for its extraordinarily high quality, and for their unfailing patience and punctuality.

Finally, my work on this book, as on all my other projects, has been ably assisted by librarians at the Bard Graduate Center: Gréta Ernest, Heather Topcik, Erin Elliott, Rebecca Friedman, and Cheryl Costello.

I am very happy to be able to dedicate this book to Wallace MacCaffrey. It was in his classes at Harvard two decades ago that I took my first steps towards becoming a historian. A book about one great scholar and teacher seems to me the best way to say thank you to another one.
