Acknowledgements

It is also a pleasure to thank the sponsors of the original symposium – the Society for the Promotion of Hellenic Studies, the A. G. Leventis Foundation and History Today – and especially the postgraduate students who helped ensure that it ran smoothly, all under the expert supervision of Anna Williams, who also organized the logistics of the conference with extraordinary patience and goodwill. In the publication process, I would like to extend my thanks to Elizabeth Jeffreys, who, among her many other duties, chairs the publications board of the Society for the Promotion of Byzantine Studies; to John Smedley and the team at Ashgate, for patience that went beyond the professionalism for which they are justly well known; and especially to my co-editor, Kallirroë Linardou, without whom, it is no exaggeration to say, this volume would never have been completed. And, as always, I would like to thank my husband, Christopher Wickham, for services above and beyond the call.
